Adjournment: 5:04 P.M.

Note: A contentious discussion ensued after adjournment regarding the covenant violations. Several issues were involved. First, the board members are not OHHA police. We do not go around “looking” for violations. Second, we have a policy regarding complaints that is not being followed. We all agreed to follow this complaint procedure. So, please do not bring a complaint to the board unless the policy is followed and the board should get involved. Third, if a policy is being violated, and continues to be violated, then that may cause the policy to become null and void. This is what happened before requiring us to develop new covenants. Alternatively, if left unchecked long enough, may make the entire set of covenants unenforceable. Of course, our HOA attorney would be able to explain this in more detail – if we all want to pay for this to happen. We also have the option of removing a covenant. The current dilemma regarding trash cans visible from the street creates the balancing of escalating the issue to a violation that requires attorney interaction, or if everyone is OK with trash cans visible from the street, then we can change the rules to allow that. Everyone has a part to play in this decision, so as a group we need to decide to enforce the rules as a community or ignore the rules as a community. We cannot pick and choose.
